

THOMAS BAGLEY

BARRISTER

Thomas maintains a broad commercial practice and has extensive experience in commercial law, corporations law and insolvency disputes. He is also a subject matter expert in class actions litigation and has developed a strong reputation in this field.

Thomas is often briefed as counsel of choice in high profile cases. His class actions practice has seen him briefed in shareholder claims, financial services, consumer and franchise disputes.

Thomas' experience at the Bar also extends to acting in a range of other practice areas including professional conduct matters, regulatory enforcement matters, public law and administrative law disputes, as well as migration matters. He appears at both trial and appellate level, often leading a junior barrister against Senior Counsel in the Supreme Court of New South Wales, Federal Court of Australia, Full Federal Court and select tribunals.

With considerable experience managing large-scale litigation, Thomas is commended by his clients for his ability to efficiently navigate and cut through complex legal issues that require a high degree of forensic analysis and intellectual rigour. He executes a strategic and methodical approach to the resolution of his clients' disputes, is a skilled negotiator and an accomplished advocate in court.

Prior to being called to the Bar in 2015, Thomas practised as a solicitor at Allens. He holds a Bachelor of Laws with First Class Honours and a Bachelor of Commerce from the University of Sydney.
